Intelligence Services and Special Operations

CENTCOM Global, Inc. Special Operations and Intelligence Services conduct HUMINT, SIGINT, and IMINT missions by employing DoD and Intelligence Agencies' collection and analysis methods. Utilizing advanced Biographical Data Collection (BDC) systems, long range and aerial surveillance, and additional Electronic Surveillance Systems (ESS) enables our teams to provide comprehensive actionable intelligence.

However, Human intelligence (HUMINT) is one of the most versatile and powerful information sources available for situational awareness and decision-making. Its low cost and ready availability makes it the silver bullet of intelligence. This is particularly true within urban operations and operations in complex terrain, where that particular environment may degrade technically acquired information. In asymmetric warfare in complex terrain, non-uniformed combatants mixing in with the general population characterize operations today. With the potential for degraded IMINT and SIGINT, HUMINT has gained a renewed importance and relevance to the overall information collection effort.

CENTCOM Global's Special Operations teams are experienced in incursion to hostile regions to conduct surveillance and intelligence collections as well as counter surveillance and Counter Intelligence (CI) operations. Intelligence Preparation of the Battlespace (IPB) for threats facing our client's operations and interests is the fundamental basis of CENTCOM Global's Intelligence Service.

Personnel Recovery

Preserving the lives of those participating in civil, humanitarian, commercial, or other services activity is one of the highest priorities of any organization or entity. Personnel recovery (PR) is the sum of efforts to prepare for and execute the recovery and reintegration of isolated personnel. Isolated personnel are those personnel who are separated (as an individual or group) or their ability to safely return while participating in a sanctioned activity or mission has been compromised.

Personnel may become isolated as a result of poor decisions, improper procedure, equipment malfunction, or enemy action. These factors increase the adversary's ability to successfully exploit isolated personnel. An adversary may attempt to exploit the situation or the isolated person directly for intelligence, propaganda, economic purposes, or retaliation.

Personnel Recovery missions are complex by nature. A response may be required in any land or sea location, threat environment, and at a time and place not of the client or isolated person's choosing. Many operations can be successfully planned based on intelligence data; however, successful execution of PR missions often require creativity, improvisations, and real time intelligence, even when forces are well-trained, prepared, and pre-positioned. PR missions may involve single or multiple aircraft, ground forces, and maritime assets.

Nonconventional asset recovery (NAR) operations recover personnel isolated in adversary-held or hostile areas. NAR teams are deployed to recover isolated personnel in areas where conventional recovery capability do not exist, are not feasible, or is not acceptable. NAR capabilities are especially advantageous in areas where adversary air or ground threat prevents recovery by conventional forces. CENTCOM Global's 3rd Special Operation Force (SOF), Nonconventional Asset Recovery Teams (NART) conduct the missions and are specifically trained in asset and personnel recovery operations.

Conventional methods and resources may be unsuited and ill equipped to facilitate such a request and need. CENTCOM Global's subject matter experts, experience, and exclusive capabilities to deliver nonconventional asset recovery (NAR) operations will fulfill the specialized service needs of many organizations, groups, individuals, NGO's and corporations, and military or government entities.

Security and Program Management

Fully accredited law enforcement personnel complete our client's security assessments. Our law enforcement teams are recruited from the Federal Bureau of Investigations, state and local law enforcement departments and represent the nation's most respected agencies.

The focus of our security and program management is to provide our client with uninterrupted operation of their business from internal conflicts and external threats, as well as, an in-depth analysis of their security and emergency procedures and operations. Risk management is complex and multifaceted, but necessary to any business in today's market. Workplace violence, asset protection and the threat of financial loss due to global threats can cost emerging business immensely, and damage the corporate image and revenue of established companies.

Not all threats to corporations are solely driven by financial gain. The psychological effects of terminations, lay-offs, and downsizing may affect a former employee or family member and the potential threats posed to the corporation are ones that should never be overlooked. Additionally, extremists and fringe groups pose an equally unpredictable and dangerous environment for business in the global market place. CENTCOM Global's Security Project Management Team can provide a complete global prospective analysis of the corporation's assets, personnel, vulnerability and address threats to meet compliance requirements and mitigation procedures.
